Nationals to Battle Athletics One Game Today—Bert Gallia Will Pitch.

BELIEVES SHAW READY

Philadelphia, Pa., June 19.-There was more rain than smoke in Pittsburgh today so the exhibition game between the Griffmen and the Pirates went by the boards, and the Old Fox hustled his athletes on to the Quaker City as soon as possible. At 12:30 o'clock the game was called off, and at 1 o'clock the Washington club was entrain for "Slumberland," arriving shortly after 9 o'clock.
There will be but one game here tomorrow between the Nationals and Athletics, as Griffith and Connie Mack got their heads together several weeks ago and Mack promised not to double up on

Those four games to be played here in three days are not going to be so easy for the Nationals as most folks think. The Mackmen, although at the bottom of the heap, always play good ball against Washington, and every game is sure to be a battle.

Today's exhibition game against the Pittsburgh Pirates meant a whole lot to Manager Griffith, for it would have given him a correct line on the ability of Jim Shaw, who was slated to pitch.

Thus far Shaw has not started a game on account of a sore arm, and while the big fellow looked good in practice while pitching to the batters, a real battle was needed to show whether or not he possessed his old-time speed and curves.

With Shaw ready to take his regular turn in the box the Nationals are strengthened considerably and strengthened at a critical stage, when one more winning pitcher means a whole lot to a ball club.

Griffith and the players believe that Shaw is as good as ever, but they can-

Nick Altrock, who claims he can three or four innings as good as he ever could.

Nick told Griff that if Big Ed Walsh was with the Chicago White Sox when the Nationals next visited the Windy City he would like to oppose Walsh, and offered to bet that he would last longer than the former spitball king.

"Besides." said Nick, "such an attraction would pack the park, for you know it have a lot of friends in that burg."

After listening to Altrock talk Griff refused to commit himself.
